The executive's budget proposal, which is submitted to the Working Committee on Budget and the Committee on Finance and Economics of the National People's Congress, is not available to the public.

According to the "Guide to the Budget Preparation for the Central Government (2007), the timetable for the formulation of the budget in China is as follows:

Each agency should submit its initial budget proposal for 2007 to the Ministry of Finance in September 2006. The Ministry of Finance then will issue the budget ceilings for each agency after reviewing the budget proposal in November 2006.

Each agency then submits its modified budget proposal for 2007 to the Ministry of Finance in the early December 2006. The Ministry of Finance then collects all the agency budget proposals and compiles them into an initial executive’s budget proposal and submits this to the State Council (the executive branch of the central government of China) for review at the end of December 2006.

The Ministry of Finance then submits the initial executive's budget proposal that has been reviewed and approved by the State Council to the National People’s Congress’ Working Committee on Budget for consultation and review in January 2007.

The Working Committee on the Budget is one of the Committees under the Standing Committee of National People's Congress.

After this consultation with the Working Committee on the Budget and any possible modifications, the Ministry of Finance next submits the executive budget proposal to the Committee on Finance and Economics for review in February 2007.

The Committee on Finance and Economics, different from the Working Committee for Budget, is one of committees under National People's Congress, not the Standing Committee of National People's Congress.

The National People's Congress reviews and approves the executive's budget proposal in March 2007. During this time, the executive’s budget proposal is not... made public. The only document that is made public is a summary of the budget, issued in March at the full meeting National People’s Congress. The budget, once enacted, is also not subsequently disclosed to the public.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: Agree with the researcher, “d.” The executive’s budget proposal is not available to the public. Information about the budget is not shared with the public until the Budget Summary “Report on the Implementation of the Central and Local Budgets for 2007 and on the Draft Central and Local Budgets for 2008” is delivered at the March People’s Congress, by the Ministry of Finance. The Report on Implementation and Draft Budget provides context for the upcoming budget year by discussing last year’s budget results (in some detail), before providing a summary of the budget plan for the coming year.

Accordingly, the answer to all questions 1-55 must be “d” or “b” – whichever response indicates that the question cannot be answered because the executive’s budget proposal and supporting document are not released to the public.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

2. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by functional classification?

   a. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
   b. All expenditures are classified by functional classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.
   c. Some, but not all, expenditures are classified by function.
   d. No expenditures classified by function are presented.

   a. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, and the categorization is compatible with international standards.
   b. All expenditures are classified by economic classification, but the categorization is not compatible with international standards.

4. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for individual programs for the budget year?

   a. Program-level data are presented for all expenditures.
   b. Program-level data are presented for at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures.
   c. Program-level data are presented, but for less than two-thirds of expenditures.
   d. No program-level data are presented.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Citation:

   Comment:
   "d" is appropriate

   We know the executive budget proposal has the program-level data according to "Guide to the Budget Preparation of the Central Governments, 2007" (pp.44-70). But The proposal is not available. So "d" is appropriate.

   Peer Reviewer One Comment:

   Peer Reviewer Two Comment:
5. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, are estimates of the aggregate level of expenditure presented for a multi-year period (at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are presented.
   b. No, multi-year estimates of aggregate expenditure are not presented.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

   Comment:
   The executive' budget proposal is not available to the public. Also, the current budget of central government is a single year budget. So "b" is definitely appropriate.

   Peer Reviewer One Comment:
   Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

6. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, is more detail than just the aggregate level presented for expenditure estimates that cover a multi-year period (for at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year expenditure estimates are presented for all individual programs, and for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative).
   b. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented for one or more expenditure classification (such as functional, economic, or administrative), but only for some individual programs.
   c. Yes, multi-year estimates are presented, but only for a portion of one or more of the expenditure classifications (such as some functions, or some administrative units) and/or for only some individual programs.
   d. No, multi-year estimates are presented for aggregate expenditure only, or they are not presented at all.

   c. Sources of tax revenue amounting to less than two-thirds of all tax revenues are identified individually.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:
8. Does the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation identify the different sources of non-tax revenue (such as grants, property income, and sales of goods and services) for the budget year?

   a. All sources of non-tax revenue are identified individually.
   b. Sources of non-tax revenue amounting to at least two-thirds of, but not all, non-tax revenues are identified individually.
   c. Sources of non-tax revenues amounting to less than two-thirds of all non-tax revenue are identified individually.
   d. No sources of non-tax revenues are identified individually.
   e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:

Answer "d" is appropriate.

The management of non-tax revenue has been weak and poor. According to Liu (2006), the concept, "Non-tax revenue," was first used by the Ministry of Finance in 2003.

Peer Reviewer One Comment:

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:
9. In the executive’s budget or any supporting budget documentation, are estimates of the aggregate level of revenue presented for a multi-year period (at least two years beyond the budget year)?

   a. Yes, multi-year estimates of aggregate revenue are presented.
   b. No, multi-year estimates of aggregate revenue are not presented.
   c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:
No evidence proves that multiple-year estimates of the aggregate level of revenue are presented in the executive's budget proposal. So "b" is appropriate

In China, National Conference on Taxation (全国税收工作会议) is held in late December or early January next year to discuss the taxation in the coming year. Those multiple-year estimates may appear in some research reports.

The Executive's Budget Proposal is not available to the public. So I marked the answer as “b.”

Also I didn’t find any information about interest payments on the debt for the budget year in "Reports on the Implementation of the Central and Local Budgets for 2006 and the Draft Central and Local Budgets for 2007" (《关于 2006 年中央和地方预算执行情况与 2007 年中央和地方预算草案的报告》)

"b" is an appropriate answer for this question.

Because the budget proposal summary, "Reports on the Implementation of the Central and Local Budgets for 2006 and the Draft Central and Local Budgets for 2007," has the relevant information and is available to the public. See part II, article (II), (III), (IV), and (V) of the report

Peer Reviewer One Comment: "d": please see response to question 1. I agree with the first responder that this information is available, but I disagree with the responder’s response because he/she is referencing the Budget Summary Report, which I have interpreted as counting as a separate document from the Executive’s Budget according to the guidelines for this questionnaire.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: “e,” I’m not sure that we can comment on this based on the media report information available (cited by the researcher), and we do not have access to the expenditure budget. Other reports have indicated that China has moved to a budgeting-by-department system (instead of by expense category), so presumably the approved expenditure budget includes detail at least to the department total level, but the public doesn’t see this.

Executive’s Year-end Report and the Supreme Audit Institution

101. How long after the end of the budget year does the executive release to the public a year-end report that discusses the budget’s actual outcome for the year?

a. The report is released six months or less after the end of the fiscal year.
b. The report is released 12 months or less (but more than six months) after the end of the fiscal year.
c. The report is released more than 12 months after the end of the fiscal year.
d. The executive does not release a year-end report.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Comment:
In December, China Finance and Economics Press will issue "Finance Yearbook of China"(《中国财政年鉴》), which includes detailed information about the budget of the past fiscal year. That is, the yearbook for fiscal year 2005 was available in December 2006.

102. In the year-end report have the data on the actual outcomes been audited?

a. Yes, all data on actual outcomes have been audited.
b. At least two-thirds, but not all, of the data on actual outcomes have been audited.
c. Less than two-thirds of the data on actual outcomes have been audited.
d. None of the data on actual outcomes has been audited, or a year-end report is not released.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:
An appropriate answer is "c"

The Finance Yearbook of China (2006) has audit report. But I am not sure how much data on actual outcomes have been audited.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: "c" or "d" – The China Finance Yearbook does have an audit report, but this document is separated from the statistics presented in the yearbook, which detail actual expenditures. The audit report is an in-depth narrative that describes specific audit activities and priorities; but it is not a comprehensive evaluation of the entire year-end budget statistics presented in the Finance Yearbook. It does not appear that there is a systematic process by which all of the data in the Finance Yearbook has been audited (although presumably some auditing does occur during the 12 month period between the close of the fiscal year, and the publication of the yearbook); there is no discussion of this in the Yearbook. So, I would say "c" – that some of the data in the report has been audited – or "d" – that none of the actual outcomes have been audited – because a formal audit process does not appear to be in place for evaluating data before it is included in the yearbook.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment: A more appropriate response to this question would be “d.”

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “d” to maintain the consistency of the data across the countries.
103. Does the year-end report explain the difference between the enacted levels (including in-year changes approved by the legislature) and the actual outcome for expenditures?

a. Yes, an extensive explanation of the differences is presented, including both a narrative discussion and quantitative estimates.
b. Yes, an explanation is presented, highlighting key differences, but some details are excluded.
c. Yes, some explanation is presented, but it lacks important details.
d. No, an explanation is not presented, or such a report is not released.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Citation:

Comment:
"Finance Yearbook of China" lists the numbers and presents less detailed explanation. For 2005, See Finance Yearbook of China, 2006.

For example, The Central Budget and Final Accounts in Part V of the Yearbook 2006（第五部分：财经统计资料；中央财政预算、决算收支）presents the difference. The Central Budget of Part II （第二部分：国家财政工作状况；中央预算）presents some explanation.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: “c” agree. The Finance Yearbook of China provides data on the enacted levels and actual outcome for expenditures (enacted, actual, and percent difference), but does not provide detailed explanation.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:
104. What level of detail is the focus of the explanation of the differences between the enacted levels and the actual outcome for expenditures presented in the year-end report?

According to the Constitution of the People's Republic of China (中华人民共和国宪法), Auditor General is nominated by the Premier (国务院总理), and decided by the National People's Congress (全国人大) or by the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress (全国人大常委) when the National People's Congress is not in session, and appointed by the Chairman (中华人民共和国主席) of the People's Republic of China. (Article 62, Sec.5; Article 67, Sec. 9; Article 80)

An auditor shall be protected by law when carrying out his functions in the light of the law. No organization or individual may refuse or obstruct auditors performance of their functions in the light of the law, or retaliate against auditors. According to Regulations for the Implementation of the Audit Law of the People's Republic of China, the National Audit Office is responsible for audits of extra-budgetary fund (Article 6), and release relevant reports (Article 35) (See http://www.audit.gov.cn/n1057/n1087/n1599/0.html)

According to Audit Law of China, National Security Ministry (国家安全部), as a department of the State Council shall be audited by the National Audit Office. (See http://www.audit.gov.cn/n1057/n1087/n1599/326836.html)

According to "Regulations on Audit of Chinese People's Liberation Army(CPLA)(中国人民解放军审计条例)", CPLA (中国人民解放军) and Chinese Armed Police Forces (中国人民武装警察部队) shall be audited by the Audit Office of CPLA (中国人民解放军审计署) (See http://www.china.com.cn/policy/txt/2007-01/22/content_7692564.htm)

So the SAI audits some agencies of security sector "a, b, c, d" are not appropriate for the answer.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: The appropriate answer is “d,” because the National Audit Office does not appear to employ designated staff for auditing the Armed Forces.

According to the “Interim Provisions of Audit Institutions on Determination of Audit Jurisdiction” (Dec 1996), “Audit jurisdiction of the military system shall be determined by the Audit Office of the People’s Liberation Army of the PRC and shall report to the CNAO for filing.” (Article 11). The Armed Forces conduct their own audits (with their own personnel) and submit reports to the National Audit Office.

China’s Audit Law also indicates that the military is responsible for its own auditing (even if audit reports are eventually submitted to the CNAO for filing, as indicated above). Article 53 of the Audit Law of the People’s Republic of China (amended February, 2006) states that “The provisions on audit work of Chinese People’s Liberation Army shall be formulated by the Central Military Commission in light of this law.”

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

b. Yes, the SAI maintains mechanisms of communication with the public, and received less than 100 but more than ten communications from the public during the past year.

c. Yes, the SAI maintains mechanisms of communication with the public but it receives very little (less than ten) or no information from the public on potential subjects for audit.

121. Does the executive make available to the public a report on what steps it has taken to address audit recommendations or findings that indicate a need for remedial action?

| a. Yes, the executive reports publicly on what steps it has taken to address audit findings. |
| b. Yes, the executive reports publicly on most audit findings. |
| c. Yes, the executive reports publicly on some audit findings. |
| d. No, the executive does not report on steps it has taken to address audit findings. |
| e. Not applicable/other (please comment). |

Comment:
I didn't find additional report on that. But as an agency of the executive, the National Audit Office has addressed the steps that the executive agency audited has taken to address audit recommendations or findings. Please see the Audit Reports for each department. http://www.audit.gov.cn/n1057/n1072/n1282/34462.html

So "c" is a more appropriate answer.

Note: The National Audit Office belongs to the executive and not the legislature in China.

Peer Reviewer One Comment: I think that the researcher is right to mark the answer to this question as “c.” Audit Reports are made public several months after the audit itself has been completed, and this delay between audit completion and public announcement of audit findings provides ministries and departments sufficient time to draft (and in some cases, implement) responses to audit recommendations. A summary statement of these measures taken in response to audit recommendations is typically included in the Audit Report when it is publicized.

In addition to the summary Audit Report documents mentioned by the researchers, Audit Reports for several ministries and departments are available online at the National Audit Office website, in both Chinese and in English. These reports are generally comprised of four sections:

1. A background section, with an overview of the function of the department or ministry under audit, general statistics describing approved and allocated funds, and brief notes on the overall quality of the ministry or department’s budget management practices.

2. A section detailing the major findings of the audit. This section includes a detailed discussion of the major audit findings, indicating specific procedural transgressions, identifying amounts of misused funds and purposes to which they were put, and generally listing all issues that were found to require attention.

3. A section with audit decisions and recommendations from the National Audit Office. This section includes decisions and recommendations from the National Audit Office on what the ministry or department under audit must do to reform their budget practices and correct past errors.

4. A section detailing corrective actions taken by the ministry or department under audit in response to CNAO recommendations. This section indicates any budget management reforms that were carried out in response to CNAO’s recommendations, and notes detailing the status of any issues that are still outstanding. Section 4 generally also includes an appendix with a more detailed message from the organization under audit, stating the measures they have taken, and the reforms they plan to make but have yet to implement.

So, Audit Reports include information on both audit findings and responsive measures that ministries and departments have taken. It is possible to include both types of information because the Audit Report is not announced publicly until several months after the audit has been completed. During the intervening months, ministries and departments develop (and to the extent that is possible, implement) requested reforms to their budget practices, and respond to past errors. The Budget Report includes information on the responses that these organizations have taken, and if reforms have been implemented only partially, this is indicated.

Peer Reviewer Two Comment:

IBP Comment: IBP editors chose answer “c” to maintain the consistency of the data across the countries.
