The Government of Algeria provides the public with scant budget information.

Each country is given a score out of 100 which determines its ranking on the Open Budget Index – the world’s only independent and comparative measure of budget transparency.

Usefulness of Budget Information Throughout the Budget Cycle

Algeria’s score of 19 out of 100 is substantially lower than the global average score of 45.

The Availability of Budget Documents Over Time

Algeria’s score of 19 on the Open Budget Index 2015 is higher than its score in 2012. However, the Government of Algeria has been inconsistent in which documents are made publicly available in a given year.

Since 2012 the Government of Algeria has increased the availability of budget information by:
- Publishing In-Year Reports.

However, the Government of Algeria has decreased the availability of budget information by:
- Reducing the comprehensiveness of the Enacted Budget.

Moreover, the Government of Algeria has failed to make progress in the following ways:
- Not making the Pre-Budget Statement available to the public.
- Not producing a Citizens Budget, Mid-Year Review, Year-End Report, or Audit Report.
- Publishing an Executive’s Budget Proposal that only contains minimal budget information.

Evidence suggests that transparency alone is insufficient for improving governance, and that public participation in budgeting can maximize the positive outcomes associated with greater budget transparency.

To measure public participation, the Open Budget Survey assesses the degree to which the government provides opportunities for the public to engage in budget processes. Such opportunities should be provided throughout the budget cycle by the executive, the legislature, and the supreme audit institution.

Algeria’s score of 0 out of 100 indicates that the public is provided with no opportunities to engage in budget processes.
The Open Budget Survey examines the extent to which legislatures and supreme audit institutions are able to provide effective oversight of the budget. These institutions play a critical role — often enshrined in national constitutions — in planning budgets and overseeing their implementation.

Oversight by the Legislature

The legislature provides limited oversight during the planning stage of the budget cycle and weak oversight during the implementation stage of the budget cycle. The legislature does not have a specialized budget research office. The executive does not receive prior approval by the legislature before implementing a supplemental budget. Finally, in both law and practice, the legislature is not consulted prior to the virement of funds in the Enacted Budget, spending any unanticipated revenue, or spending contingency funds that were not identified in the Enacted Budget.

Oversight by the Supreme Audit Institution

The supreme audit institution provides weak budget oversight. Under the law, it has significant discretion to undertake audits as it sees fit. The supreme audit institution is provided with sufficient resources to fulfill its mandate. However, the head of the institution can be removed without legislative or judicial approval, which undermines its independence. Finally, it has no quality assurance system in place.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Improving Transparency
Algeria should prioritize the following actions to improve budget transparency:

- Publish a Pre-Budget Statement.
- Produce and publish a Citizens Budget, Mid-Year Review, a Year-End Report, and an Audit Report.
- Increase the comprehensiveness of the Executive’s Budget Proposal by presenting more information on the classification of expenditures for the budget year and information on the classification of expenditures for future years.

Improving Participation
Algeria should prioritize the following actions to improve budget participation:

- Establish credible and effective mechanisms (i.e., public hearings, surveys, focus groups) for capturing a range of public perspectives on budget matters.
- Hold legislative hearings on the budgets of specific ministries, departments, and agencies at which testimony from the public is heard.
- Establish formal mechanisms for the public to assist the supreme audit institution to formulate its audit program and participate in audit investigations.

Improving Oversight
Algeria should prioritize the following actions to strengthen budget oversight:

- Establish a specialized budget research office for the legislature.
- Ensure the executive receives prior approval by the legislature before implementing a supplemental budget.
- Require legislative or judicial approval to remove the head of the supreme audit institution.
The Open Budget Survey uses internationally accepted criteria developed by multilateral organizations such as the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), and the International Organisation of Supreme Audit Institutions (INTOSAI). It is a fact-based research instrument that assesses what occurs in practice through readily observable phenomena. The entire research process took approximately 18 months between March 2014 and September 2015 and involved about 300 experts in 102 countries. The Survey was revised somewhat from the 2012 version to reflect emerging developments in accepted good practice and to strengthen individual questions. A full discussion of these changes can be found in a technical note on the comparability of the Open Budget Index over time (see below).

Survey responses are typically supported by citations and comments. This may include a reference to a public document, an official statement by the government, or comments from a face-to-face interview with a government official or other knowledgeable party.

The Survey is compiled from a questionnaire completed for each country by independent budget experts who are not associated with the national government. Each country’s questionnaire is then independently reviewed by an anonymous expert who also has no association to government. In addition, IBP invites national governments to comment on the draft results from the Survey and considers these comments before finalizing the Survey results.

Despite repeated efforts, IBP was unable to get comments on the draft Open Budget Questionnaire results from the Government of Algeria.
