Drawing on internationally accepted criteria developed by multilateral organizations, the Open Budget Survey uses 109 equally weighted indicators to measure budget transparency. These indicators assess whether the central government makes eight key budget documents available to the public online in a timely manner and whether these documents present budget information in a comprehensive and useful way.

Each country receives a composite score (out of 100) that determines its ranking on the Open Budget Index – the world’s only independent and comparative measure of budget transparency.

How comprehensive and useful is the information provided in the key budget documents that the Kyrgyz Republic publishes?

The Kyrgyz Republic’s score of 55 out of 100 is higher than the global average score of 42.
The Kyrgyz Republic’s score of 55 on the 2017 Open Budget Index is largely the same as its score in 2015.

Since 2015, the Kyrgyz Republic has increased the availability of budget information by:

- Increasing the information provided in the Year-End Report.

However, the Kyrgyz Republic has decreased the availability of budget information by:

- Failing to produce a Mid-Year Review that meets international standards requirements, including the presentation of macroeconomic and fiscal estimates for the remainder of the budget year.

Public Participation

Transparency alone is insufficient for improving governance. Public participation in budgeting is vital to realize the positive outcomes associated with greater budget transparency.

To measure public participation, the Open Budget Survey assesses the degree to which the government provides opportunities for the public to engage in budget processes. Such opportunities should be provided throughout the budget cycle by the executive, the legislature, and the supreme audit institution.

The questions assessing participation in the Open Budget Survey 2017 were revised to align them with the Global Initiative for Fiscal Transparency’s new principles on public participation, which now serve as the basis for widely accepted norms on public participation in national budget processes. Therefore, data on the extent of public participation in budgeting in the Open Budget Survey 2017 cannot be compared directly to data from earlier editions.

Key Budget Documents

Pre-Budget Statement: discloses the broad parameters of fiscal policies in advance of the Executive’s Budget Proposal; outlines the government’s economic forecast, anticipated revenue, expenditures, and debt.

Executive’s Budget Proposal: submitted by the executive to the legislature for approval; details the sources of revenue, the allocations to ministries, proposed policy changes, and other information important for understanding the country’s fiscal situation.

Enacted Budget: the budget that has been approved by the legislature.

Citizens Budget: a simpler and less technical version of the government’s Executive’s Budget Proposal or Enacted Budget, designed to convey key information to the public.

In-Year Reports: include information on actual revenues collected, actual expenditures made, and debt incurred at different intervals; issued quarterly or monthly.

Mid-Year Review: contains a comprehensive update on the implementation of the budget as of the middle of the fiscal year; includes a review of economic assumptions and an updated forecast of budget outcomes.

Year-End Report: describes the situation of the government’s accounts at the end of the fiscal year and, ideally, an evaluation of the progress made toward achieving the budget’s policy goals.

Audit Report: issued by the supreme audit institution, this document examines the soundness and completeness of the government’s year-end accounts.

To what extent do different institutions in the Kyrgyz Republic provide opportunities for public participation?

The Kyrgyz Republic’s score of 31 out of 100 indicates that it provides few opportunities for the public to engage in the budget process. This is higher than the global average score of 12.

The Open Budget Survey examines the role that legislatures, supreme audit institutions, and independent fiscal institutions play in the budget process and the extent to which they are able to provide effective oversight of the budget. These institutions play a critical role — often enshrined in national constitutions or laws — in planning budgets and overseeing their implementation.

These indicators were revised to better assess the role of formal oversight institutions in ensuring integrity and accountability in the use of public resources. Therefore, data on the role and effectiveness of oversight institutions in the Open Budget Survey 2017 should not be compared directly to data from earlier editions.

To what extent does the legislature in the Kyrgyz Republic provide budget oversight?

The legislature provides adequate oversight during the budget cycle. This score reflects that the legislature provides adequate oversight during the planning stage of the budget cycle and limited oversight during the implementation stage of the budget cycle.

The main barriers to effective legislative oversight are:

- A legislative committee does not examine or publish reports on in-year budget implementation online.
- In practice, as the budget is implemented, the legislature is not consulted before the government shifts funds between administrative units specified in the Enacted Budget or reduces spending due to revenue shortfalls.

To what extent does the Supreme Audit Institution in the Kyrgyz Republic provide budget oversight?

The supreme audit institution provides adequate budget oversight.

- Under the law, it has full discretion to undertake audits as it sees fit.
- Moreover, the head of the institution is appointed by the legislature or judiciary and cannot be removed without legislative or judicial approval, which bolsters its independence.
- However, the supreme audit institution is provided with insufficient resources to fulfill its mandate, and its audit processes are not reviewed by an independent agency.

Oversight by an Independent Fiscal Institution

The Kyrgyz Republic does not have an independent fiscal institution (IFI). While IFIs are not yet widespread globally, they are increasingly recognized as an important source of independent, nonpartisan information. IFIs take a variety of different institutional forms. Common examples include parliamentary budget offices and fiscal councils.

RECOMMENDATIONS

How can the Kyrgyz Republic improve transparency?

The Kyrgyz Republic should prioritize the following actions to improve budget transparency:

- Produce and publish a Mid-Year Review that provides detailed information on forward-looking macro-fiscal estimates.
- Increase the information provided in the Executive’s Budget Proposal by including information on updated revenue and expenditure estimates for the year prior to the budget year, macroeconomic forecasts, and the financial position of the government, including contingent and future liabilities.
- Increase the information provided in the Year-End Report by providing detailed data on comparisons between the original macroeconomic forecast and actual outcome.
How can the Kyrgyz Republic improve participation?
The Kyrgyz Republic should prioritize the following actions to improve public participation in its budget process:

- Pilot mechanisms for members of the public and executive branch officials to exchange views on national budget matters during both the formulation of the national budget and the monitoring of its implementation. These mechanisms could build on innovations, such as participatory budgeting and social audits. For examples of such mechanisms, see www.fiscaltransparency.net/mechanisms/.
- Hold legislative hearings on the Audit Report, during which members of the public or civil society organizations can testify.
- Establish formal mechanisms for the public to assist the supreme audit institution in formulating its audit program and to participate in relevant audit investigations.

How can the Kyrgyz Republic improve oversight?
The Kyrgyz Republic should prioritize the following actions to make budget oversight more effective:

- Ensure a legislative committee examines reports on in-year budget implementation and publishes recommendations online.

- Consider setting up an independent fiscal institution to further strengthen budget oversight.
