Peer Reviewer
Opinion: Agree with Comments
Comments: The peer review is correct that not all data sources are provided in machine readable format for the Pre-Budget Statement/Autumn Statement. However, there is a government document published alongside the Pre-Budget Statement/Autumn statement that lists all the data sources the government uses. A quick review of these data sources suggests (e.g. the Office for National Statistics) suggests that they typically do provide machine-readable data to download. So, the government Pre-Budget Statement/Autumn Statement does not provide machine-readable data itself, but it indicates where it can be found. Nevertheless the score of the reviewer is technically correct.

PBS-6a: If the PBS is not publicly available, is it still produced?

Sources: Autumn Statement 2016: some of the things we've announced
Comments: Researcher: IBP no longer accepts the press releases with the budget and the autumn statement as citizens budget publications. This largely reflects IPB's reassessment of OBS standards, rather than a fundamental change in UK practices.

Peer Reviewer
Opinion: Agree with Comments
Comments: I agree with the reviewer here. There is not a separate 'Citizen's Budget' but the UK government publishes summaries of these fiscal events (e.g. the press release covering key announcements). In the context of the UK - with a high-capability media able to analyse government budget policy from a number of angles for consumption by the public - there is arguably less need for such a document. There is perhaps even less need for such a document to be produced four times a year at each of the stages of the budget cycle. The information HMT sets out in the budget documents is pretty extensive, which also reduces the need for separate summaries.

EBP-1a: What is the fiscal year of the EBP evaluated in this Open Budget Survey questionnaire? Please enter the fiscal year in the following format: “FY YYYY” or “FY YYYY-YY.”

Answer: FY 2016-17
Budget 2016 The fiscal year runs from 1 April to 31 March of the following year. Economic and fiscal forecasts underpinning the budget are published separately by the Office for Budget Responsibility, the UK's independent fiscal council.

Peer Reviewer
Opinion: Agree with Comments
Comments: The researcher has highlighted HMT's 2016 Budget as the 'Executive Budget Proposal'. This is correct that this forms the EBP for the fiscal year 2016/17. The peer reviewer has chosen the 2016 Autumn Statement as the 'Pre-Budget Statement' for this exercise. It should be noted that the 2016 Autumn Statement is the Pre-Budget Statement for the financial year 2017-18 - i.e. it is the 2015 Autumn Statement (or equivalent) that would form the PBS for the EBP 2016-17. So, the researcher is looking at the latest documents; but they are not within the same PBS/EBP annual cycle.

IBP comment: IBP confirms that researcher is looking at the correct version of PBS and EBP. OBS methodology asks researcher to use the most recent document that is published before a set research cut-off date. As a result, depending on the kind of document, various fiscal years are represented within one annual budget cycle. The cut-off date for OBS 2017 was December 31st, 2016.

Opinion: Disagree
Suggested answer: b.
Comments: This is a tale of two halves: 1) Total government expenditure. The reviewer is correct that total government expenditure as reported by the ONS figures (broken down by various economic categories but not by administrative unit) (second attachment) is done monthly; and within one month of the end of the period. 2) Expenditure by administrative unit. The detail of expenditure by administrative unit is done through the OSCAR system, which explains in-year spending by department/ministry (first attachment). However, reviewing the government website for OSCAR suggests this is provided QUARTERLY. The quarterly figures are broken down into their constituent months, so you can identify each month's spending, but they are not released monthly. I have reviewed the OSCAR-related websites very quickly and I cannot see a facility to download yourself (which would constitute 'monthly' reports since you could do these yourself). I have reviewed a further document and found on the site below a statement that OSCAR data is available quarterly and released on the same day as the ONS public sector finances statistics. https://www.gov.uk/government/uploads/system/uploads/attachment_data/file/601287/OSCAR-in-year-dataset-guidance.pdf So I am unsure what to say here - strictly speaking, government expenditure by administrative unit - according to the data provided by the reviewer - is only available for administrative units every quarter. As a result, I think this score should be a 'B'.

Researcher response: I agree that only some reports are published every month. However, OBS methodology allows for multiple In-year Reports to be cited and the use of whichever fetch the highest score as long as they all meet the timeliness criteria outlined in the guidelines.

IBP comment: The researcher has correctly interpreted the OBS methodology.

IYRs-3a: If the IYRs are published, what are the dates of publication of the IYRs? Researchers should respond to this question if the document is published either within the time frame accepted by the OBS methodology or too late. Please enter the date in the following format: “DD Month YYYY.” For example, 5 September 2016 should be entered as 05 September 2016. If In-Year Reports are not produced at all, researchers should mark this question “n/a.” Researchers should provide the full title of the most recent In-Year Report in the space below, and – in the comment box underneath – the full titles of older IYRs.

Answer: Public sector finances: Sept 2016. This ONS bulletin appears every month and reports on the UK Public Sector current budget, net borrowing, net cash requirement and net debt.

Comments: The UK SAI does not issue a single 'Audit Report' for the UK government, public sector or central government. The reviewer makes this clear. Departments are audited individually by NAO, rather than in a consolidated audit exercises. As the reviewer notes, the audit reports for individual departments are all published on different days. They are typically done well within six months of the end of the year; although without going through every last one of them its not possible to confirm fully (I don't personally think this is worth it)

Comments: I agree with the reviewer’s approach - there is no single UK government audit report; and going through all the individual departmental audit reports to find an ‘average’ date figure is too time consuming. Using HMT’s audit report as an example seems fair enough.

Comments: As above, the reviewer has listed the audit reports of HMT and NAO itself; and noted that the other audit reports for other departments can be found by searching the UK government website. This is a reasonable response to the issue that the UK government does not publish a single audit report for itself, and this is done department by department.

1: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year that are classified by administrative unit (that is, by ministry, department, or agency)?

a. (100) Yes, administrative units accounting for all expenditures are presented.
b. (67) Yes, administrative units accounting for at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures are presented.

2: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year by functional classification?

Answer: a. (100) Yes, expenditures are presented by functional classification.

Sources: In Budget 2016, Chart 1 shows public spending by main function, showing the distribution of Total Managed Expenditure (TME) of £772 billion in 2016-17.

Peer Reviewer Opinion: Agree

Answer: a. (100) Yes, the functional classification is compatible with international standards.

Sources: The source provided with Chart 1 states: "Office for Budget Responsibility 2016-17 estimates. Illustrative allocations to functions are based on HMT analysis including capital consumption figures from the Office for National Statistics. Figures may not sum due to rounding." The document makes no reference to COFOG or the IMF GFSM, and the headings are only partly in line with the main functions in the IMF GFSM. The "Budget 2016 Data Sources" document explains further (pp. 5-6): "...The allocation of spending to functions is largely based on the United Nations' Classifications of the Functions of Government (COFOG)... Social protection includes tax credit payments in excess of an individual's tax liability, which are now counted in Annually Managed Expenditure (AME), in line with Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) guidelines..." The word "largely" indicates some deviations from COFOG.

Peer Reviewer Opinion: Agree

4: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for the budget year by economic classification?

Answer: a. (100) Yes, expenditures are presented by economic classification.

Peer Reviewer Opinion: Agree

5: If the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation presents expenditures for the budget year by economic classification, is the economic classification compatible with international standards?

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: Footnote 1 accompanying Table 2.3 in Budget 2016 explains that "Budgeting totals are shown including the Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR) forecast allowance for shortfall." The OBR's Economic and Fiscal Outlook accompanying the budget explains (paragraph 4.87): "our central forecast for public sector expenditure... is based on the National Accounts aggregates for public sector current expenditure (PSCE), public sector gross investment (PSGI) and total managed expenditure (TME), which is the sum of PSCE and PSGI."

Peer Reviewer
Opinion: Agree with Comments
Comments: The reviewer does not directly answer the question as to whether the UK's budget classification is consistent with GFS standards. The reviewer notes that the tables referred to are comprised of information from National Accounts; but that is not quite the same as saying that they are GFS compatible. I think UK financial statistics probably are simply because it's the international standard and the UK has the capability to meet the standard. However, I don't think this reference/source provided by the reviewer quite proves it.

Researcher response: A better source for this might be the IMF's 2016 Fiscal Transparency Evaluation (p. 26): "The common chart of accounts for central government units is based on IFRS standards, but is sufficiently detailed to allow its bridging to the economic classifications of international statistical standards, such as GFSM 2014 or ESA 2010."

6: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present expenditures for individual programs for the budget year?

- a. (100) Yes, programs accounting for all expenditures are presented.
- b. (67) Yes, programs accounting for at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures are presented.
- c. (33) Yes, programs accounting for less than two-thirds of expenditures are presented.
- d. (0) No, expenditures are not presented by program.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: The OBR's Economic and Fiscal Outlook accompanying Budget 2016 contains Table 4.22: Welfare spending. It gives an overview of expenditure for each welfare programme including historical spending and medium-term forecasts. Total welfare spending was forecast at £218.3 for 2016-17. The Central Government Supply Estimates 2016-17 contains subhead details for administrative units (Part II). Strictly speaking, these are not proper programs (in the sense of objective-based spending categories). The IMF's 2016 transparency evaluation notes the "lack of a program classification" in the UK (p. 26). The answer "a" requires the generous definition offered by IBP.

Peer Reviewer
Opinion: Disagree
Suggested answer: c.
Comments: The reviewer notes that there is a 'lack of program classification' in the UK, in the opinion of the IMF. The historic welfare spending cited by the reviewer covers around one third of spending. The supply estimates cited by the reviewer do not contain details of spending by function (only high level control totals). So, I'm afraid that the evidence presented does not meet the criteria that 'all' spending is presented by 'program' in terms of even the IBP's generous definition. I don't think this is necessarily a problem for UK public spending, as there is sufficient information on what expenditure is being used for provided by other means; nevertheless, I don't think the information provided here meets the definition of 'a' as set out by IBP.

Researcher response: My own view is in line with the assessment of the reviewer, but my answer reflects OBS methodology.

IBP comment: IBP agrees with the researcher. Under the OBS methodology, because there is no international standard for a program, IBP accepts any detail below the level of administrative unit as a program.

7: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present expenditure estimates for a multi-year period (at least two-years beyond the budget year) by any of the three expenditure classifications (by administrative, economic, or functional classification)?

- a. (100) Yes, multi-year expenditure estimates are presented by all three expenditure classifications (by administrative, economic, and functional classification).
- b. (67) Yes, multi-year expenditure estimates are presented by two of the three expenditure classifications.
- c. (33) Yes, multi-year expenditure estimates are presented by only one of the three expenditure classifications.
- d. (0) No, multi-year expenditure estimates are not presented by any expenditure classification.
- e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: b. (67)

Sources: See previous questions. Only Chart 1 in Budget 2016 with functional spending is limited to information for a single year, while medium-term estimates are included in the economic and administrative classifications referenced. The Central Government Supply Estimates 2016-17 do not
8: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present expenditure estimates for a multi-year period (at least two-years beyond the budget year) by program?

- (100) Yes, multi-year estimates for programs accounting for all expenditures are presented.
- (67) Yes, multi-year estimates for programs accounting for at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures are presented.
- (33) Yes, multi-year estimates for programs accounting for less than two-thirds of expenditures are presented.
- (0) No, multi-year estimates for programs are not presented.
- Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: c. (33)

Sources: Refer to the previously cited Table 4.22: Welfare spending in the OBR's Economic and Fiscal Outlook accompanying Budget 2016. Its forecast period covers 2016-17 plus four further financial years (until 2020-21). The Central Government Supply Estimates 2016-17 contain subhead details for administrative units (Part II), but not beyond the budget year.

Comments: Researcher: In April 2014, the government introduced a cap on elements of benefit spending, referred to as the “welfare cap”. The OBR has been asked to assess compliance, and as a result we have more detailed programme-level information for welfare spending with the budget.

9: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present the individual sources of tax revenue (such as income tax or VAT) for the budget year?

- (100) Yes, individual sources of tax revenue accounting for all tax revenue are presented.
- (67) Yes, individual sources of tax revenue accounting for at least two-thirds of, but not all, tax revenues are presented.
- (33) Yes, individual sources of tax revenue accounting for less than two-thirds of all tax revenues are presented.

10: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present the individual sources of non-tax revenue (such as grants, property income, and sales of government-produced goods and services) for the budget year?

- (100) Yes, individual sources of non-tax revenue accounting for all non-tax revenue are presented.
- (67) Yes, individual sources of non-tax revenue accounting for at least two-thirds of, but not all, non-tax revenues are presented.
- (33) Yes, individual sources of non-tax revenue accounting for less than two-thirds of all non-tax revenues are presented.
- (0) No, individual sources of non-tax revenue are not presented.

11: Does the Executive’s Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present revenue estimates by category (such as tax and non-tax) for a multi-year period (at least two-years beyond the budget year)?

a. (100) Yes, multi-year estimates of revenue are presented by category.
b. (0) No, multi-year estimates of revenue are not presented by category.
c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Sources: Table 4.22: Welfare spending in the OBR’s Economic and Fiscal Outlook accompanying Budget 2016 breaks down welfare spending by programme and this table includes outturn data for 2014-15 and an estimate for 2015-16. The Central Government Supply Estimates 2016-17 contain the previous year’s subhead figures for administrative units (Part II). Again, these are counted as programmes for the purpose of this question, although the subheads do not constitute proper programmes in the sense of objective-based spending categories. In the latter, stricter sense, the UK does not have a programme classification (IMF, United Kingdom Fiscal Transparency Evaluation, 2016, p. 26).

Peer Reviewer
Opinion: Disagree
Suggested answer: c.
Comments: As with the previous question on whether the UK has ‘programs’, I don’t think the reviewer provides the evidence to show that the UK meets the IBP definitions, except with regard to welfare expenditure where the OBR breaks down welfare categories into what can be considered ‘programs’. On that basis, I think the answer is (c), around a third of expenditure is shown.

IBP comment: IBP agrees with the researcher. Under the OBS methodology, because there is no international standard for a program, IBP accepts any detail below the level of administrative unit as a program.

21: In the Executive’s Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation, have expenditure estimates of the year prior to the budget year (BY-1) been updated from the original enacted levels to reflect actual expenditures?

Answer: c. (33)

Sources: Table 4.22: Welfare spending in the OBR's Economic and Fiscal Outlook accompanying Budget 2016 includes programme-level outturn expenditure for 2014-15 and an estimate for 2015-16. The Individual Main Estimates in Part 6 of the Central Government Supply Estimates 2016-17 give subhead detail for each department in Part II, but this only includes provisions for 2015-16 and omits outturn data for prior years.

Comments: Researcher: In April 2014, the government introduced a cap on elements of benefit spending, referred to as the “welfare cap”. The OBR has been asked to assess compliance, and as a result we have more detailed programme-level information for welfare spending with the budget.

a. (100) Yes, information beyond the core elements is presented for all extra-budgetary funds.
b. (67) Yes, the core information is presented for all extra-budgetary funds.
c. (33) Yes, information is presented, but it excludes some core elements or some extra-budgetary funds.
d. (0) No, information related to extra-budgetary funds is not presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: Extra-budgetary funds operate on the basis of enabling legislation, notably the National Insurance Fund (NIF). The NIF is separate from the Consolidated Fund and holds the contributions of the National Insurance Scheme, which are used to pay for social security benefits such as state retirement pensions. In practice, it is fully integrated with the budget and its contributions are listed as current receipts e.g. in the OBR's March 2016 Economic and Fiscal Outlook that accompanied the budget. See e.g. table 4.6, which estimates National Insurance Contributions to increase from £110 billion in 2014-15 (outturn) to £151 billion in 2020-21. In addition, HM Revenues and Customs reports annually on the National Insurance Fund Account.

34: Does the Executive’s Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present central government finances (both budgetary and extra-budgetary) on a consolidated basis for at least the budget year?

a. (100) Yes, central government finances are presented on a consolidated basis.
b. (0) No, central government finances are not presented on a consolidated basis.
c. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: The OBR's Economic and Fiscal Outlook provides a comprehensive analysis of the government's fiscal position over the medium term in chapter 4. In its 2016 fiscal transparency evaluation, the IMF notes (section 2.1.1): "Budget documentation includes revenues, expenditures, and financing of all public sector bodies... However, the bulk of revenues and expenditures provided are on a net basis, with 3.7 percent of GDP (FY 2016/17) of own-source revenues and related expenditures largely ignored. The headline total managed expenditure (the main fiscal aggregate) figure used within the key budget documents, does not include expenditure associated with departmental income by each agency. Reporting both revenue and expenditure on a gross basis increases total managed expenditure from 39.7 percent of GDP in 2016–17 to 43.4 percent of GDP, and current receipts to 40.3 percent of GDP, with no net impact on borrowing—assuming that all departmental income is spent within the budget year... Information on most departmental own source revenue is presented in supporting material, however this is presented well after the budget, in a way that is difficult to understand. The main estimates are presented a month after the main budget event, and after the beginning of the financial year, providing highly detailed, disaggregated information on budget funded spending as well as departmental income for each of the agencies. However, there is no reporting on how the departmental incomes is to be spent, or indeed whether they will be spent. The figures in the main estimates are presented on a different basis to the total managed expenditure discussed in the main budget documents, and while a rough bridge between the two figures can be derived, it is technically very burdensome. This makes comparing budgeted expenditure to outturns by department very difficult."

Sources: Grants to the Scottish Consolidated Fund, Welsh Consolidated Fund and Northern Ireland Consolidated Fund to finance these three devolved governments in the UK are in the central government estimates for the Scotland Office, Wales Office and Northern Ireland Office respectively. The underlying formula is set out in the Statement of Funding Policy that is published periodically alongside the Spending Review. The estimates for the Department for Communities and Local Government include a line "DCLG - Local Government" that includes subheads for the "Revenue Support Grant" and "Other Grants and Payments" (Main Estimates 2016-17, p. 275). Local government allocations are further explained in the Local Government Finance Report (England) 2016-17, which is published separately from the budget and not part of the EBP. Details are available at https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/local-government-finance-report-england-2016-to-2017.
36: Does the Executive’s Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present alternative displays of expenditures (such as by gender, by age, by income, or by region) to illustrate the financial impact of policies on different groups of citizens, for at least the budget year?

b. (67) Yes, two alternative displays of expenditures are presented to illustrate the financial impact of policies on different groups of citizens.
c. (33) Yes, one alternative display of expenditures is presented to illustrate the financial impact of policies on different groups of citizens.

Sources: See the supporting document “Impact on households: distributional analysis to accompany Budget 2016.” "Chart 1.A: Impacts of policy changes on the distribution of tax and public spending, comparing the 2010-11 system with 2019-20." This chart shows the proportion of public spending received by households in each income quintile, comparing the two fiscal periods. "Chart 1.D: Average amount of spending on public services used, by household type and spending area, per capita (£ per year, 2019-20).” This chart shows the average amount of public service spending that will be received by different household types (without children, with children, pensioner) in 2019-20, on a per capita basis. These values reflect the cost of the benefit in kind provided by public services. This spending is further broken down by spending area: health, education, employment support, social care, and other. In addition, Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses presents analysis by country and region in chapter 9, but this document is not part of the EBP and it is not tabled with the budget.

37: Does the Executive’s Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present estimates of transfers to public corporations for at least the budget year?

a. (100) Yes, estimates of all transfers to public corporations are presented, along with a narrative discussion.
b. (67) Yes, estimates of all transfers to public corporations are presented, but a narrative discussion is not included.
c. (33) Yes, estimates of some but not all transfers to public corporations are presented.
d. (0) No, estimates of transfers to public corporations are not presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: Any grants from Departments to public corporations are specified in the Estimates, and annual Departmental Reports provide further details including narrative discussion. For example, transfers to the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) are reflected in the Main Supply Estimates for the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

38: Does the Executive’s Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present information on quasi-fiscal activities for at least the budget year? (The core information must include a statement of purpose or policy rationale for the quasi-fiscal activity and the intended beneficiaries.)

a. (100) Yes, information beyond the core elements is presented for all quasi-fiscal activities.
b. (67) Yes, the core information is presented for all quasi-fiscal activities.
c. (33) Yes, information is presented, but it excludes some core elements or some quasi-fiscal activities.
d. (0) No, information related to quasi-fiscal activities is not presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: c. (33)

Sources: Quasi-fiscal activities appear limited, but the detailed relevant information is not in the EBP. Since 2007, HM Treasury has made a series of interventions to support the financial stability of the UK banking system. These interventions are discussed in HM Treasury’s Annual Report and Accounts, and the National Audit Office has produced several reports on these interventions: http://www.nao.org.uk/highlights/taxpayer-support-for-uk-ban… (http://www.nao.org.uk/highlights/taxpayer-support-for-uk-banks-faqs/). Bank shareholdings are managed by UK Financial Investments (UKFI), which was created in November 2008 with HM Treasury as its sole shareholder. Its Framework Document (version of April 2016) requires that it "respects the commercial decisions of the financial institutions" (p. 4). UKFI produces an Annual Report and Accounts document with detail on these shareholdings, e.g. UK Financial Investments Ltd, Annual Report and Accounts 2015-16. See http://www.ukfi.co.uk (http://www.ukfi.co.uk). Some public companies carry out activities that may fall under the definition provided. For example, the Student Loans Company is a not for profit company that provides student loans, with the Department for Education as its largest shareholder (since 2016; previously the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills). It reports independently (http://www.slc.co.uk (http://www.slc.co.uk)), and the relevant government department provides information in its annual report. See Department for Business, Innovation and Skills, Annual Report and Accounts 2015-16, e.g. p. 74. Hence, while there is some information in the EBP or supporting documents on these and other bodies (see next question), most detail is available elsewhere and not consolidated in the EBP.

39: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present information on financial assets held by the government? (The core information must include a listing of the assets, and an estimate of their value.)

a. (100) Yes, information beyond the core elements is presented for all financial assets.
b. (67) Yes, the core information is presented for all financial assets.
c. (33) Yes, information is presented, but it excludes some core elements or some financial assets.
d. (0) No, information related to financial assets is not presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: c. (33)

Sources: The Economic and Fiscal Outlook discusses transactions in financial assets and gives an update on the estimated net effect of interventions in the financial sector as a result of the crisis and recession of the late 2000s on the public finances (chapter 4, e.g. Table 4.4). More detail is available but not in the EBP. The Departmental Annual Reports and Accounts contain details of financial assets held by departments, e.g. the "Notes to the Resource Accounts" from p. 105 onwards in HM Treasury's Annual Report and Accounts 2015-16.

40: Does the Executive's Budget Proposal or any supporting budget documentation present information on nonfinancial assets held by the government? (The core information must include a listing of the assets by category.)

a. (100) Yes, information beyond the core elements is presented for all nonfinancial assets.
b. (67) Yes, the core information is presented for all nonfinancial assets.
c. (33) Yes, information is presented, but it excludes some nonfinancial assets.
d. (0) No, information related to nonfinancial assets is not presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: d.

Sources: The answer is scored "d" since the available information, which is very comprehensive, is not contained in the EBP. In a listing of more than 1000 pages, the National Asset Register covers fixed assets of central government (last updated 2007). In addition, the audited Whole of Government Accounts (first published in November 2011 for fiscal year 2009-10) consolidate the audited accounts of over 5,500 organisations across the public sector. The 2014-15 WGA reports £1,455 billion of assets of which the largest category of £848 billion is property, plant and equipment (p. 5). Each department provides information on assets in its Annual Report and Accounts.

Peer Reviewer
Opinion: Agree with Comments
Comments: The reviewer is correct. The UK does produce very detailed and extensive discussion of non-financial assets. However, these are not formally part of the 'Executive Budget Proposal' so unfortunately they must be scored a (d) here, which is a shame as the transparency is genuine; it just happens to be published outside of the formal budget process.

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: Contingent liabilities are itemised in Note K of Part III of a departmental Estimate in the Main Supply Estimates 2016-17. E.g., the Ministry of Defence lists all contingent liabilities above a threshold of £300,000 as well as "unquantifiable" contingent liabilities. An example of the latter is "Contractorisation of Atomic Weapons Establishment (AWE): in respect of nuclear risks under the Nuclear Installations Act 1965" (p. 56).

Answer: d.

Sources: As recommended by the OECD Best Practices for Budget Transparency (1.7), there is a dedicated and in-depth analytic report on the long-term sustainability of public finances. The independent Office for Budget Responsibility publishes a detailed Fiscal Sustainability Report in July each year, which replaced an earlier series (the annual Long Term Public Finance Report) published by HM Treasury between 2002 to 2009. The reassignment of this work to the OBR has increased the credibility of the analysis. In June 2016, the OBR exceptionally cancelled the publication of its July 2016 Fiscal Sustainability Report following a referendum in which a majority voted in favour of the UK leaving the European Union (EU), the country's biggest trading partner. This altered key assumptions on which the report would have been based. Instead, the OBR published several analytical papers and prepared a new Fiscal Sustainability Report that was published in January 2017.

Comments: Researcher: IBP scoring methodology requires a "d" score even though the absence of this information during the assessment period is due to exceptional circumstances.

Opinion: Agree with Comments

Comments: Again, I think the UK has done the right thing (i.e. publish this kind of analysis, with additional credibility now that it the OBR lead the process) but unfortunately does it at the 'wrong' time (i.e. publish this outside of the budget cycle) and therefore fails to score highly in this assessment.
I: UK scored higher for the same question in the last round (OBS 2015) because the 2014 Budget included a discussion of long-term debt (Annex B) that was not included in the 2016 Budget.

a. (100) Yes, information beyond the core elements is presented for all tax expenditures.
b. (67) Yes, the core information is presented for all tax expenditures.
c. (33) Yes, information is presented, but it excludes some core elements or some tax expenditures.
d. (0) No, information related to tax expenditures is not presented.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: c. (33)

Sources: Policy decisions (including tax expenditures) are costed in the Autumn Statement (chapter 2) and Budget (chapter 2), and verified by the OBR in Annex A of the relevant Economic and Fiscal Outlook. HM Revenues and Customs provides estimates of the cost of principal and minor tax reliefs, and a list of tax reliefs where costs cannot be estimated. The HMRC figures cover the stock of tax reliefs (not only new measures), but they are not part of the EBP or its supporting documents.

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: Earmarked taxes, known as “hypothecated” taxes in the UK, have proven problematic, but saw a revival under the previous Chancellor of the Exchequer, George Osborne. E.g. the Road Fund was set up in 1921 and financed by earmarked taxes, but the fund was frequently raided for general revenue and closed down in 1937. In his Summer Budget 2015, the Osborne announced the creation of a Roads Fund financed from vehicle excise duty from 2020-21 onwards. This would be the first dedicated road tax since the 1930s. In his Autumn Statement 2015, Osborne announced an apprenticeship levy for introduction in April 2017. Some employers will be required to contribute to the levy, with proceeds used to fund apprenticeship training. Occasionally, the government makes political promises that certain revenues will go towards a certain expenditure. For example, Budget 2016 announced a new soft drinks industry levy targeted at producers and importers of soft drinks that contain added sugar, with the objective “to encourage companies to reformulate by reducing the amount of added sugar in the drinks they sell, moving consumers towards lower sugar alternatives, and reducing portion sizes.” The budget promised to use the revenue from this levy to increase funding for physical education and sports in primary schools; extending the school day in secondary schools by offering a wider range of activities for pupils including more sport; and expanding breakfast clubs “to ensure more children have a nutritious breakfast as a healthy start to their school day.” (p. 33) See also Table 2.1: Budget 2016 policy decisions, item 9 (Soft Drinks Industry Levy). In the Main Supply Estimates, Part III Note B of a departmental Estimate shows the “Analysis of Departmental Income” (current and capital) that is used to offset gross spending by that department. Only income set out in this note may be retained by the department. Any other income has to be surrendered to the Consolidated Fund. Prior year data are shown for a comparison.

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: Spending priorities are set for a multi-year period in periodic spending reviews, which fix departmental spending limits (excluding spending that is annually managed, such as benefits and debt interest payments). The last Spending Review took place in 2015 and covered the period up to 2020-21 (for three departments; for all others only until 2019-20). Annual budgets have to be consistent with this multi-year framework, and policy decisions are motivated with reference to it and costed over the medium term (see Budget 2016, chapter 2). While my overall judgment is that the UK merits an “a” response, I would add that current practice falls short of the much more systematic statement of linkages between outcomes and outputs documented in the budget documents of countries such as Australia or New Zealand. In 2016, the government moved to a system of Single Departmental Plans for the period 2015 to 2020 that “describe the government's objectives for this Parliament and how departments are fulfilling their commitments” (https://www.gov.uk/government/collections/single-departmental-plans-for-2015-to-2020#single-departmental-plans-2015-to-2020). The plans spell out a “vision” and “objectives” for departments, and describe “what” and “how” they are doing in relation to these. These are not part of the budget documents.

Sources: Budget 2016 gives information on the fiscal impact of individual tax and spending decisions, some of which relate to poor segments of the population, e.g. "Benefit Cap: exemption for recipients of carers and guardians allowance" and "Benefit cap: reduce to £20,000, and £23,000 in London". Some of these, like the latter, aimed to reduce benefit payments to poor segments of the population. See Table 2.1: Budget 2016 policy decisions and Table 2.2: Measures announced at Spending Review and Autumn Statement 2015 or earlier that will take effect from April 2016 or later. The overall incidence of spending and taxation by household income group quintiles and other categories is presented in the document "Impact on households: distributional analysis to accompany Budget 2016" that accompanies Budget 2016.

Answer: d.

Sources: The Finance Act contains tax legislation that affects various sources of revenue as required (see also question 61). Detailed revenue information is in the budget documentation tabled by the executive (see question 12). However, the Office for Budget Responsibility, an independent forecasting body, produces a binding forecast that incorporates announced policy measures and which underpins the budget. The government cannot adjust these numbers; they are fixed by the OBR. See Economic and Fiscal Outlook, March 2016. However, these figures are for the executive proposal, not the approved budget - although in practice, parliamentary amendments are very rare.

Comments: As I’ve mentioned earlier on ‘Citizens Budget’ questions - I think that UK budget documentation is already relatively well-presented for the average reader, and the media in the UK provide a good job of breaking it down and discussing it. I think this means a separate ‘Citizens Guide’ – separate from the usual press release – is simply not necessary. However, by the terms of the scoring system here it means the UK does not pass the grade.

68: Do the In-Year Reports present actual expenditures by any of the three expenditure classifications (by administrative, economic, or functional classification)?

| a. (100) | Yes, the In-Year Reports present actual expenditures by all three expenditure classifications (by administrative, economic, and functional classification). |
| b. (67)  | Yes, the In-Year Reports present actual expenditures by two of the three expenditure classifications. |
| c. (33)  | Yes, the In-Year Reports present actual expenditures by only one of the three expenditure classifications. |

Answer: b. (67)

Sources: The monthly Public Sector Finances release (tables PSF3) contains information on current and capital expenditure by the central government. In June 2010, HM Treasury published raw data from the COINS database (the predecessor to OSCAR) for the years 2005/06 to 2009/10. From September 2012 onwards the data releases have been made from OSCAR, the new accounting system. These quarterly data releases provide monthly in-year spending details for each department: https://www.gov.uk/government/collections/hmt-oscar-publishing-from-the-database

69: Do the In-Year Reports present actual expenditures for individual programs?

| a. (100) | Yes, the In-Year Reports present actual expenditures for programs accounting for all expenditures. |
| b. (67)  | Yes, the In-Year Reports present actual expenditures for programs accounting for at least two-thirds of, but not all, expenditures. |
| c. (33)  | Yes, the In-Year Reports present actual expenditures for programs accounting for less than two-thirds of expenditures. |
| d. (0)   | No, the In-Year Reports do not present actual expenditures by program. |
| e. Not applicable/other (please comment). | |

Answer: c. (33)

Sources: The OSCAR releases give information on sub-segments decided by departments, and these may or may not correspond to particular programmes. In its 2016 transparency evaluation, the IMF comments (p. 26): "The lack of a program classification is compensated by the widespread use of a COFOG-compliant functional classification. Departmental groups manage their expenditure and disclose information on it both by economic category and COFOG sub-function (in some cases, it goes even beyond the sub-function level). PESA uses this information to disclose a cross-classification of expenditure by administrative and functional classifications, which allows the analysis of the effectiveness of government policies in each area, as well as international comparisons in this regard. In compliance with the ESA TP, the ONS also compiles and discloses a cross-classification of expenditure by economic and functional classifications."
71: Do In-Year Reports present actual revenue by category (such as tax and non-tax)?

Sources: Relevant information is in a range of publications. The Annual Report and Accounts published by each central government department contain a "Statement of Parliamentary Supply" and some narrative information, e.g. HM Treasury, Annual Report and Accounts 2015-16 (the Statement starts on p. 83). Since these reports contain the audit certificate, they are counted as part of the "audit report" for the purposes of this survey. The Whole of Government Accounts contain finalised cross-government outturns on a number of economic categories. This publication contains an audit certificate, so it, too, is counted as part of the "audit report" for the purposes of this survey. Moreover, the WGA document does not compare outturn against original budget/estimate for each department, however. This information is found in each department's annual report and accounts. The above documents are not counted as part of the "year-end report" for the purpose of this survey. Here, we include the OBR's Forecast Evaluation Report that specifically and in detail considers forecast and outturn differences for various macroeconomic variables (GDP, inflation, labour market), as well as receipts, public expenditures and fiscal aggregates.

Sources: Revenue estimates are not "enacted". The Finance Act deals with tax provisions (rates, base, exemptions, etc) but not revenue estimates. However, the Office for Budget Responsibility, an independent forecasting body, produces a binding forecast that underpins the budget. Answer: c. (33)

Sources: In 2016 the government introduced Single Departmental Plans for 2015 to 2020. These plans describe objectives and how each department works to achieve these. The plans are outcome-focused and meant to "allow the public to track progress against key outcomes": https://www.gov.uk/government/collections/single-departmental-plans-for-2015-to-2020. This reporting is not part of the documentation that is classified as part of the year-end report for the purpose of this survey. In addition, the annual reports also provide a progress update with a narrative discussion, e.g. HM Treasury, Annual Report and Accounts 2015-16. Again, the annual reports are not counted as year-end reports for the purpose of this survey.

Researcher response: Revised in accordance with previous question, as IBP advises that departments' annual reports and SDPs can be used to answer this question. Although the annual reports include nonfinancial data on outputs, not all of the data are compared to the original estimates (in the SDP). As a result, a "c" response is appropriate.

Answer: b. (67)

Sources: Forecast Evaluation Report 2016, Table A.9 "Breakdown of March 2015 receipts errors for 2015-16" includes receipts from National Insurance contributions. Narrative discussion is not especially warranted, due to the absence of forecast error (total forecast error for this item was only 0.2% percent, with an actual figure of 113.4 billion against 113.2 billion forecast). The report discusses modelling changes in relation to this item on p. 69.

Opinion: Agree with Comments
Comments: I agree with the reviewer. However, I am pretty sure that the UK government operates more extra-budget funds than just the National Insurance Fund. I say this as the government doesn't publish - as far as I'm aware - a comprehensive or clear list of ALL extra-budget funds. So, the reviewer has correctly identified one of the largest extra-budgetary funds, and is correct in their scoring of it. My concern is that this is not a comprehensive list of all extra-budgetary funds in the UK. As mentioned, to compile one you would have to do a 'bottom up' review of government spending, and I don't think HMT publishes a consolidated list. However, in the absence of a consolidated list, and given the unreasonable demand to gather all the separate pieces of information that might be required to create the reviewer's own 'bottom up' list, I think this is a reasonable answer.

Researcher response: I note the reviewer's comments. IBP reviewed the answer and determined that "b" is an appropriate response.

Comments: As with the previous note, I am unsure that the National Insurance Fund is the only extra-budgetary fund. I guess (but cannot be certain as the information is not consolidated in one place) that there might be others. I do agree with the reviewer that the NAO’s remit to audit all government expenditure is quite clear, and this would include this kind of fund.

Researcher response: The NAO audits the Whole of Government Accounts, which are very comprehensive. The exclusion of some institutions (notably the Royal Bank of Scotland) is explained, and affects public sector spending. However, reporting (and auditing) of general government expenditure is comprehensive. See IMF 2016 UK Fiscal Transparency Evaluation, pp. 17-18.

101: Does the executive make available to the public a report on what steps it has taken to address audit recommendations or findings that indicate a need for remedial action?

a. (100) Yes, the executive reports publicly on what steps it has taken to address audit findings.
b. (67) Yes, the executive reports publicly on most audit findings.
c. (33) Yes, the executive reports publicly on some audit findings.
d. (0) No, the executive does not report on steps it has taken to address audit findings.

102: Does either the Supreme Audit Institution (SAI) or legislature release to the public a report that tracks actions taken by the executive to address audit recommendations?

- (100) Yes, the SAI or legislature reports publicly on what steps the executive has taken to address all audit recommendations.
- (67) Yes, the SAI or legislature reports publicly on most audit recommendations.
- (33) Yes, the SAI or legislature reports publicly on some audit recommendations.
- (0) No, neither the SAI nor legislature reports on steps the executive has taken to address audit recommendations.

Answer: d.

Sources: There are no regular tracking reports. However, the NAO does occasionally produce stand-alone follow-up reports on particular topics, e.g. "Update on preparations for Smart Metering" (June 2014) or "Update on consumer protection landscape reforms" (April 2014).

103: Is there an Independent Fiscal Institution (IFI) that conducts budget analyses for the budget formulation and/or approval process?

- (100) Yes, there is an IFI, its independence is set in law, and it has sufficient staffing and resources, including funding, to carry out its tasks.
- (67) Yes, there is an IFI, but either its independence is not set in law or its staffing and resources, including funding, are insufficient to carry out its tasks.
- (33) Yes, there is an IFI, but its independence is not set in law and its staffing and resources, including funding, are insufficient to carry out its tasks.
- (0) No, there is no IFI.
- Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: The UK does have an Independent Fiscal Institution, called the Office for Budget Responsibility, or OBR (see http://budgetresponsibility.org.uk). The 2011 Budget Responsibility and National Audit Act requires the OBR "to examine and report on the sustainability of the public finances" (section 4). It also gives complete discretion to the OBR in the performance of its duties, but it "must perform that duty objectively, transparently and impartially" (section 5). An independent review carried out by Kevin Page, the former Parliamentary Budget Officer of Canada, concluded that the OBR "has succeeded in imbuing its work with a perception of independence and transparency" (p. 13).

- (67) Yes, the IFI publishes its own macroeconomic or fiscal forecast.
- (33) No, the IFI does not publish its own macroeconomic or fiscal forecast, but it does publish an assessment of the official macroeconomic and/or fiscal forecasts produced by the executive.
- (0) No, there is no IFI; or the IFI neither publishes its own macroeconomic and/or fiscal forecasts, nor a commentary on the official forecasts produced by the executive.
- Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: The OBR produces the Economic and Fiscal Outlook, which contains the official macroeconomic and fiscal forecasts for the budget. The government does not produce separate macroeconomic and fiscal forecasts.
105: Does the Independent Fiscal Institution (IFI) publish its own costings of new policy proposals, to assess their impact on the budget?

a. (100) Yes, the IFI publishes its own costings of all new policy proposals.
b. (67) Yes, the IFI publishes its own costings of major new policy proposals.
c. (33) Yes, the IFI publishes its own costings of a limited number of new policy proposals.
d. (0) No, there is no IFI; or the IFI does not publish its own costings of new policy proposals.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: c. (33)

Sources: The OBR does not publish its own policy costings, but it "publicly states whether we believe that each costing published by the Treasury is reasonable and central". See OBR Briefing paper No. 6, "Policy costings and our forecast", March 2014.

Comments: I think you could argue that the scoring should be 'a' in this piece. The reviewer notes that the OBR does not undertake the costing itself, but provides high-level assurance that HMT is using reasonable measures. Given that this assurance applies to all HMT policy costings, not just some, this could be an 'a'. Equally, none of the answers really make sense in the UK context so it's all debateable.

IBP comment: To clarify, a "c" response is applicable if an IFI publishes costings only for a limited number of proposals, or if it publishes an assessment of the estimates produced by the executive. It is this latter practice that applies in the UK.

106: In the past 12 months, how frequently did the head or a senior staff member of the Independent Fiscal Institution (IFI) take part and testify in hearings of a committee of the legislature?

c. (33) Rarely (i.e., once or twice).
d. (0) Never.

Sources: According to personal correspondence from Larry Honeysett, Head of Financial Scrutiny at the Scrutiny Unit of the House of Commons (1 November 2016): 1) all committees were provided with a visual briefing pack on their individual Main Estimates. The combined version is here http://www.parliament.uk/documents/Scrutiny-Unit/Main_estimates_2016-17_ALL_DEPTS.pdf); 2) in addition some committees asked the Scrutiny Unit to present this and brief them orally, including the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Education committees; 3) a number of committees were provided with questions, which they either sent to the department or held back for future sessions (e.g. the Scottish Affairs, Transport, Education, Work and Pensions committees). The Justice Committee asked for a briefing note; 4) there were Estimates Day debates, which had a connection with the elements of Main Estimates: Justice (Courts and tribunal fees) and Energy spending priorities: investors and consumers. 5) Some committee inquiries have focused on spending, although not specifically on the Estimates e.g. the impact of the Spending Review on health and social care http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm201617/cmselect/c…
6) All committees receive copies of the memoranda prepared on particular Estimates by relevant government departments. But there have been no specific inquiries or reports specifically into an Estimate for some time. The last one appears to be by the Defence committee on the 14-15 Main Estimates.

Sources: There is no single audit report. In 2015-16, the National Audit Office certified 368 accounts, published 65 reports and supported 47 sessions of the Public Accounts Committee. The latter focus on “value for money” or performance audits which are produced at different points in time throughout the year. IBP comment: For purposes of responding to this question, the committee examination of performance and other audit reports (beyond an annual Audit Report) can be taken into account. In the UK, the Public Accounts Committee releases a number of reports (42 reports in 2015-16) examining a range of audit findings in a timely manner. This is consistent with an “a” response (in lieu of an “e” response).

119: Was the process of appointing (or re-appointing) the current head of the SAI carried out in a way that ensures his or her independence?

c. (33) The SAI has some discretion, but faces considerable limitations.
d. (0) The SAI has no discretion to decide which audits it wishes to undertake.
e. Not applicable/other (please comment).

Answer: a. (100)

Sources: The Comptroller and Auditor General has "complete discretion" in choosing which performance (value for money) audits to undertake (Budget Responsibility and National Audit Act 2011, section 17). However, financial audits of the accounts of departments and public bodies are required by various Acts of Parliament: https://www.nao.org.uk/about-us/our-powers/ (https://www.nao.org.uk/about-us/our-powers/). Moreover, according to the Government Resources and Accounts Act 2000 (section 25), "The Treasury may by order provide for the accounts of a body to be audited by the Comptroller and Auditor General."

Peer Reviewer
Opinion: Agree with Comments
Comments: I agree that in practice the NAO has full discretion (i.e. it is not likely to ever be prevented from undertaking an audit it wished to do). As the reviewer notes, it is "required* by law to undertake financial audits; and HMT can put more institutions under its auditing mandate as it wishes (suggesting that NAO could not refuse to do a financial audit on a body that HMT have directed it to). So, technically the fact that NAO must do some audits, and must follow HMT's direction in determining which bodies fall into the 'must audit' category you could say it is not fully autonomous and does have limits on its discretion; although the 'limit on discretion' is the ability to not undertake financial audits. This may be a technicality - NAO's discretion is limited in that it appears it could not refuse to undertake a financial audit (if, for some reason, it did not want to). However, I think the intent of the question relates to whether NAO are restricted against their will from undertaking audits - this is not the case in the UK.

123: Are the audit processes of the Supreme Audit Institution (SAI) reviewed by an independent agency?

a. (100) Yes, an independent agency conducts and publishes a review of the audit processes of the SAI on an annual basis.
b. (67) Yes, an independent agency conducts and publishes a review of the audit processes of the SAI at least once in the past five years, but not annually.
c. (33) No, but a unit within the SAI conducts a review of the audit processes of the SAI on a regular basis.

Sources: In 2011, HM Treasury committed to increased consultation specifically for tax policy decisions (HM Treasury and HMRC, "Tax consultation framework", March 2011; see https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/tax-consultation-framework). It publishes a response to the inputs received during a consultation. See www.gov.uk (http://www.gov.uk), search for "HM Treasury" and "consultations" for a full listing of consultations carried out by HM Treasury in recent years. At the end of a consultation, a summary of responses is published that includes a listing of those who made submissions. The number of consultations is sizeable: HM Treasury published 48 documents relating to consultations during the 2016 calendar year. This includes consultations that shape upcoming budgets, e.g. a decision in 2015 not to go ahead with a tobacco levy in the budget (https://www.gov.uk/government/consultations/tobacco-levy) or changes to the bank levy announced in 2016 for the upcoming budget (https://www.gov.uk/government/consultations/re-scoping-of-the-bank-levy).

As these examples illustrate, consultations play a role in shaping upcoming Finance Bills, but they tend to be specific and targeted. It should be noted that consultations by other departments often have direct implications for future spending. E.g. "Early years funding: changes to funding for 3- and 4-year-olds" (1 December 2016) is a consultation by the Department for Education.

Peer Reviewer
Opinion: Agree with Comments
Comments: As well as 'specific consultation' exercises (which the reviewer correctly notes are often tax/regulation focused), HMT also has a longstanding system of 'budget representations'. See: https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/budget-representations-guidance/guidance-for-submitting-your-budget-or-autumn-statement-representation This means anyone - individual citizen or group - can send a budget representation ahead of the budget process. It should be noted that HMT does not reply to, or comment on, individual representations. However, from my experience (a few years ago now) they are indeed read by budget staff. The more important representations (e.g. from the CBI or TUC) are reviewed in more detail and HMT staff write a summary of what they are doing in response for Ministers. Acknowledging this 'budget representation' system does not change the score - these are not 'interactive' but they are open to all. I agree with the 'b' score here. Your covering email asks for specific consideration of Section 5. I should add that in my experience of working at HMT (a few years ago now) in reality it operates quite a closed process. While anyone can indeed write in their ideas, in practice only budget representations from major institutions and stakeholders will be carefully reviewed (and - if they are important enough - their content would have been transmitted already through a face to face briefing with special advisers and/or ministers). An individual citizen is likely to have their representation reviewed by someone relatively junior without a strong expectation that it would be communicated upwards. It is not possible to prove this, as HMT provides no data or summary of the budget representation process, but this was my experience from my time there.

Researcher response: Thank you for pointing out the "public representation" channel. There is no interaction or bespoke response to any correspondence submitted in this way. Hence, I view the consultations as "the deepest or most interactive mechanism" for the purpose of this question.

Answer: b.

Sources: The relevant HM Treasury consultations are typically on specific tax matters. They are publicly announced and often receive media coverage. See, e.g., Financial Times, “Salary sacrifice schemes face reform: Treasury to review pay-for-perks swap as cost to public purse rises”, 29 August 2016. Relevant industry groups or pressure groups are typically amongst those to respond, while individual submissions are rare. See www.gov.uk (http://www.gov.uk), search for “HM Treasury” and “consultations” for a full listing of consultations carried out by HM Treasury in recent years. At the end of a consultation, a summary of responses is published that includes a listing of those who made submissions.

Comments: As noted, HMT also invites budget representations from any individual or group who wishes to make them. These are not specifically addressed at disadvantages groups, however. As noted in the previous discussion, in practice it is the more organised and high-profile groups (e.g. business institutions, the local government association) that have close review of their representation. A private citizen’s representation may not receive much attention, although it will be read.

Researcher response: Thank you for pointing out this mechanism. For the purpose of this question, I do not regard the provision of an email and postal address for sending in comments as steps to “actively seek out individuals from vulnerable and underrepresented communities and/or civil society organizations representing vulnerable and underrepresented individuals and communities”.

During the budget formulation stage, which of the following key topics does the executive’s engagement with citizens cover?

For the purpose of this question, key topics are considered to be:
1. Macroeconomic issues
2. Revenue forecasts, policies, and administration
3. Social spending policies
4. Deficit and debt levels
5. Public investment projects
6. Public services

a. (100) The executive’s engagement with citizens covers all six topics
b. (67) The executive’s engagement with citizens covers at least three (but less than six) of the above-mentioned topics
c. (33) The executive’s engagement with citizens cover at least one (but less than three) of the above-mentioned topics
d. (0) The requirements for a “c” response or above are not met
e. Not applicable (please comment)

Answer: b. (67)

Sources: A variety of topics are covered by government consultations, but not all six topics are covered by HM Treasury consultations. The website of the government lists 48 documents related to consultations by HM Treasury during the 2016 calendar year. There were several consultations directly linked to Budget 2016: Half of them dealt with tax matters (Horserace Betting Levy, Pension Tax Relief, Stamp Duty Land Tax, and the energy efficiency tax landscape), others related to specific public services (financial guidance, crematoria provision), and other topics (compulsory purchase system, protection for micro businesses). Consultations linked to infrastructure included those on the National Infrastructure Commission and the local infrastructure rate. An example linked to social policies is the consultation on the indexation and equalisation of a guaranteed minimum pension in public service pension schemes, to avoid inequality in the payment of public service pensions between men and women. The consultation on the Financial Policy Committee powers of direction in the buy-to-let market relates to the management of financial and macroeconomic risks. It should be noted that consultations by other departments often have direct implications for spending. See e.g. “Early years funding: changes to funding for 3- and 4-year-olds” (1 December 2016) is a consultation by the Department for Education. In general, consultations that relate to the spending side of the budget tend to be less clearly linked to the annual budget cycle than consultations related to taxes.

Comments: In addition, as noted above, the budget representation system allows any individual or group to send their views on any issue to HMT for consideration within the budget process. However, as this is only minimally structured (although in theory covers all these areas as all topics are open for discussion) it do not propose a change of score.
128: Does the executive use participation mechanisms through which the public can provide input in monitoring the implementation of the annual budget?

a. (100) Yes, the executive uses open participation mechanisms through which members of the public and government officials exchange views on budget implementation.
b. (67) Yes, the executive uses open participation mechanisms through which members of the public provide their inputs on budget implementation.
c. (33) Yes, the executive uses participation mechanisms during the budget implementation phase, but either these mechanisms capture only some ad-hoc views, or the executive invites specific individuals or groups for budget discussions (participation is not, in practice, open to everyone).
d. (0) The requirements for a “c” response or above are not met.
e. Not applicable (please comment).

Answer: c. (33)

Sources: The consultation mechanism used by HM Treasury may cover tax policy formulation or implementation. An example relating to the review of an existing scheme is the "Simplifying the Gift Aid donor benefit rules" consultation, announced on 11 November 2016, which in turn was a response to an earlier consultation on this topic. Gift Aid is an income tax relief designed to benefit charities and Community Amateur Sports Clubs (CASC). This consultation was about ways to simplify and improve the scheme. An example of a consultation on the framework to guide implementation and the detailed design of a policy is "Help to Save: response to the consultation on implementation", 17 October 2016. This relates to "a new Help to Save scheme to encourage people on low incomes to build up a rainy day fund" that was announced as part of Budget 2016 (p. 3). The summary document summarises the main points raised in response to the consultation questions and sets out the government’s response. Another example might be the benefit fraud hotline of the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP): https://www.gov.uk/report-benefit-fraud. This specific “participation” opportunity is in principle open to everyone, but it is targeted at one sector of the budget, although a very important one. According to the Office for National Statistics: “In the financial year 2014/15, the UK government spent £258 billion on welfare, which made up 35% of all government spending.” (http://visual.ons.gov.uk/welfare-spending/). However, this mechanism is not provided by HM Treasury.

129: With regard to the mechanism identified in question 128, does the executive take concrete steps to receive input from vulnerable and under-represented parts of the population on the implementation of the annual budget?

a. (100) Yes, the executive takes concrete steps to receive input from individuals from and/or organizations representing vulnerable and underrepresented parts of the population on the implementation of the annual budget.
b. (0) The requirements for an “a” response are not met.
c. Not applicable (please comment).

Answer: b.

Sources: HM Treasury consultations may attract inputs from organisations representing vulnerable parts of the population. E.g. “Christians Against Poverty” and other charities responded to the "Help to Save" consultation, but intended beneficiaries of the scheme ("people on low incomes") did not provide direct input into the process (see pp. 13-14).

For the purpose of this question, key topics are considered to be:

1. Changes in macroeconomic circumstances
2. Delivery of public services
3. Collection of revenue
4. Implementation of social spending
5. Changes in deficit and debt levels
6. Implementation of public investment projects

e. Not applicable (please comment).

Answer: c. (33)

Sources: HM Treasury consultations tend to be focused on revenue measures, and this may include their implementation. Other departments’ consultation cover relevant topics, e.g. the benefit fraud hotline is related to social spending. See https://www.gov.uk/report-benefit-fraud (https://www.gov.uk/report-benefit-fraud). Consultations can cover implementation issues in a wide range of areas including revenue measures, investment in transport, service delivery in areas such as education etc, and others. In the first 11 months of the 2016 calendar year, 117 consultations related to implementation issues, i.e. roughly 10 per month and 14% or the total 824 consultations in this period.

Comprehensive information must include at least three of the following elements:

1. Purpose
2. Scope
3. Constraints
4. Intended outcomes
5. Process and timeline

a. (100) Comprehensive information is provided in a timely manner prior to citizens engagement in both budget formulation and implementation phases.

Comments: The reviewer is correct in terms of how HMT deals with specific consultations - it does provide a summary of the responses, and a list of who responded. Regarding the budget representation system, HMT does not provide a list of representations received and does not provide a summary of the responses. They are received and read, but there is no further public accountability action relating to them. As a result, the answer is quite bifurcated - HMT provides quite a lot of response and detail on specific consultation exercises, but nothing on the 'general' budget representation system. I think the consultation system is the main way in which HMT gathers specific views on its policy proposals, so I am content to stick with the 'a' score. I think if HMT was to list and summarise all budget representations received for a specific budget it would be an unreasonable (and nugatory) administrative burden.

Researcher response: Based on the guidelines for question 125, I consider the consultations as "the deepest or most interactive mechanism" for the purpose of that question. I note the comments on the representations, but I consider these an inferior (not interactive and less meaningful) mechanism.

Comments: https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/budget-representations-guidance/guidance-for-submitting-your-budget-or-autumn-statement-representation) The above link relates to the budget representation process, which is discussed in previous answers. This is specifically tied to the budget preparation and formulation of the Executive's Budget Proposal process. As can be seen for this link, it is not an 'open' process and the webpage notes that representations for the Spring 2017 budget are now closed (i.e. there was a specific timetable by which inputs should have been received). On that basis, I think the answer is 'a' in that there is a timetable for participation (through the budget representation system) and the deadlines are posted on the webpage. As noted, it's an open question how effective the budget representation process is, but it does exist.
135: Do one or more line ministries use participation mechanisms through which the public can provide input during the formulation or implementation of the annual budget?

Sources: Consultations are widely used across ministries. See www.gov.uk (http://www.gov.uk) and search for “consultations” to obtain a full listing. Many of these affect departmental expenditure. For an example, see question 131 for details. Here, the Department for Education is consulting about an early years national funding formula and changes to the way the three- and four-year-old entitlements to childcare are funded through the budget.

136: Does the legislature or the relevant legislative committee(s) hold public hearings and/or use other participation mechanisms through which the public can provide input during its public deliberations on the formulation of the annual budget (pre-budget and/or approval stages)?

Sources: See answers to questions 112 and 113. Following the tabling of the budget on 16 March 2016, the Treasury Select Committee took evidence on 12 and 13 April 2016, including from academics and think tanks. See https://www.parliament.uk/business/committees/committees-a-z/commons-select/treasury-committee/inquiries1/parliament-2015/budget-2016/). In principle, members of the public can make submissions to a committee including the Treasury Select Committee (see attached example). However, there have been no specific committee inquiries or reports specifically into an Estimate, which are the basis for approving annual expenditure, since 2014-15.

137: During the legislative deliberations on the annual budget (pre-budget or approval stages), which of the following key topics does the legislature’s (or relevant legislative budget committee) engagement with citizens cover?

1. Macroeconomic issues
2. Revenue forecasts, policies, and administration
3. Social spending policies
4. Deficit and debt levels
5. Public investment projects
6. Public services

Answer: b. (67)

Sources: See answer to previous question, including link. In principle, any of these topics may be covered by the Treasury Select Committee, but the focus is on (1), (2) and (4). The lack of hearings on the Estimates means that there is no detailed parliamentary scrutiny of social spending (3), investment projects (5) and public services (6) as part of the annual budget approval process.

Under the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998, the Comptroller and Auditor General is a prescribed person to whom external persons can make disclosures relating to “the proper conduct of public business, value for money, fraud and corruption in relation to the provision of public services”. NAO may then investigate these, but the C&AG is not compelled to do so. See link above for full details.
